Santa Anans Defeat J. C. Bonds

ISSUE FAILS BY 261 VOTES

Santa Ana defeated the proposed $385,000 junior college bonds at the polls yesterday, a vote of 491 "yes" and 2401 "no" failing to give the bonds the required two-thirds majority.

Only 6422, or approximately 32 per cent of the approximately 20,000 voters registered, participated in the election. Of the total vote, the bonds need 4282 to win, but the "yes" total was 261 short of that figure.

Interest Shown
The moderate size of the vote failed to reflect the interest shown by citizens last night as the returns were coming in. Not until the closing hour of balloting did the voters visit the polls in force. But at the finish, long lines of voters were standing in front of every polling place, waiting to get in and register their verdict on the bonds. And during the evening, The Register telephones were kept busy with calls for information on the result.

First returns after the count started gave the bonds a winning lead. When five of the 15 precincts had reported, the bonds had 16 more than two-thirds of the vote at that point, the "yes" vote being 1066 to 525 "no." These five precincts were: 12 (Greenville school), 8 (Lowell school), 3 (Hoover school), 6 (Lowell school) and 1 (Edison school). A curious circumstance was that only two of these five precincts gave the bonds the required two-thirds majority. There were, in fact, only three precincts in the district that carried the bonds. The third one was No. 11 (Wilson school), where the bonds received a margin of one vote over the two-thirds mark.

After the first five precincts were in, the complexion of the race changed. The sixth precinct, No. 2 (Franklin school) turned the tide against the bonds and they never again got the lead.

The three sections where the bonds carried were the northwest (Wilson), the northwest (Hoover) and the extreme southern area (Edison). The Jefferson school area in the north and all other sections failed to give the necessary majority. The Jefferson school area, precinct No. 4, was last to report. It polled the heaviest vote, 830-312 "yes" and 368 "no."

Next to the last to report was No. 10 (Spurgeon school), which had the second largest vote, 850. No. 5 (Lincoln school) had the third largest vote, 795.

The vote by precincts follows:

Precincts	Yes	No
Edison	1066	525
2063 Orange avenue	313	94
Franklin	1312	138
Hoover	408	238

Copper Company Reopens Mines

BUTTE, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Anaconda copper mining company has opened its Belmont and Steward mines here, adding about 1400 men since the first of the month, it was learned today.

The mines had been closed since late in May when the company decided to cease operations because of curtailed consumption and increased stocks of copper.

Storm Toll Nears 600

By United Press
New England's disaster from hurricane, tidal waves and floods came into full realization today for the first time. The dead, numbered almost 600; the damage, $350,000,000; the homeless refugees, 20,500. These tolls were growing rapidly as the first semblance of order was re-established. Already, the known dead numbered 555, and the search of a 500 mile stretch of ruined shoreline still was far from complete.

A thousand coast guardsmen patrolled the coast where historic villages from Newport, R. I., to Cape Cod were wrecked, and famous resorts and landmarks obliterated.

Disease Threatens
In the interior, 500,000 rescue and relief workers had begun the rehabilitation of Rhode Island, Connecticut.

CHINESE LINES FAIL TO BLOCK JAPANESE

SHANGHAI, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Japanese army sources reported today that the second and last phase of their march on the temporary Chinese capital at Hankow.

Aided by clear weather on several fronts, more than 200 Japanese planes dropped hundreds of bombs upon Chinese positions and lines of supply, it was said. The Japanese claimed that 60,000 Chinese troops had been killed in the current drive, but admitted that in some sections, Chinese were counter attacking with tanks.

Near Capital
Japanese forces closest to Hankow are within a few miles of Yangtze, 70 miles southwest of the temporary Chinese capital, it was reported. Chinese reports indicated that the enemy's troops in Yangtze constituted a major force with more than 200 motor trucks engaged day and night in rushing supplies and reinforcements from Juichang.

The Chinese claimed today that their defenses at Teinchiachen remained intact despite an eight-day hammering from the north by the Japanese.

Seek Ruling On Transient Votes

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—(UP)—The San Francisco chapter of the National Lawyers' guild today sought a ruling from the state supreme court on the right of workers in federal migratory camps to vote.

The guild alleged that county clerks throughout the state are refusing to register workers who have lived in camps the required period to establish legal residence. The guild said the clerks maintained that such residence, while legally adequate, was not permanent.

Seek Peace In Grape Industry

SAN FRANCISCO, Sept. 24.—(UP)—An effort to bring together the antagonistic factions of dry wine grape growers and other vineyardists of the state was urged today by the coast counties section of the California State Chamber of Commerce meeting here.

The group recommended that the state chamber, the University of California, the Wine Institute and financial interests undertake a study of this and other problems of the state's grape industry.

The council resolved against the single tax and $30 Every Thursday pension initiatives on the November ballot.

PEACE PROPOSAL IS HIT AT AFL PARLEY

SANTA BARBARA, Calif., Sept. 24.—(UP)—One thousand delegates to the California State Federation of Labor convention returned to their homes today after turning down a plan for peace with the CIO, and side stepping reaffirmation of President Roosevelt.

A resolution endorsing the President and New Deal was turned down on the objection of J. W. Buzzell, secretary of the Los Angeles Central Labor Council and chairman of the convention rules committee, that it was improperly drawn.

The resolution drafted by Jack Tenney of Los Angeles Musicians' Union praised the Roosevelt administration as of "inestimable value to the labor movement" and asked the A. F. of L. to increase its membership.

Cites Reasons
Buzzell asserted that "in the past there have been several measures proposed by Mr. Roosevelt in which the A. F. of L. does not agree. There are some points in the program for the coming session of Congress with which the A. F. of L. does not agree, particularly in reference of the A. F. of L. demand for amendment of the national labor relations act to prevent the board from becoming recruiting officers and agents for the C. I. O."

Delegates voted to accept the committee's recommendation and turn down the resolution without criticizing the President.

Moral Support For Czechs Asked

PITTSBURGH, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Four national Slovak societies, claiming a membership of 125,000, today appealed to Secretary of State Cordell Hull to add the moral support of the United States to the cause of Czechoslovakia in order to avoid war in Europe.

That moral support will whip into line the warring Chamberlain, the message said. "And once the firm determination of the British, French, the Russians and the British to stand by Czechoslovakia is made plain to Hitler, the crisis will be over and democracy will not be replaced in Czechoslovakia by Nazi terrorism and regimentation."

The societies signing the messages were the National Slovak Society of the U. S. A., Slovak Gymnastic Union Sokol of America, Slovak Evangelical Union of America and the Zivna Beneficial Society.

Killer To Be Sentenced Soon

AUBURN, Cal., Sept. 24.—(UP)—Everett Gilbert Parman, 28, showed little nervousness today, as he awaited the pronouncing of a mandatory death sentence upon him Tuesday at 10 a. m., for the murder of George McElroy, 20, junior college athlete.

The death sentence was made mandatory by the jury's failure to recommend leniency in convicting him of first degree murder, and its verdict holding Parman sane. The jurors found he shot and killed McElroy on a Riverside street last July, as McElroy sought to identify him as the man who attacked Mrs. McElroy's sister, Margaret Brusso, 21.

LATE BULLETINS

PADUA, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Premier Benito Mussolini told 300,000 wildly shouting Fascists today that Czechoslovakia had until October 1, one week from today, to answer Germany's proposals.

He said that if there was war it was possible that it might be localized between Germany and Czechoslovakia.

Then he added: "However, some parties in other governments think that it is time to settle accounts with the totalitarian states. In this case these parties would find themselves not before two nations (Italy and Germany) but one nation, forming one bloc."

BUCHAREST, Roumania, Sept. 24.—(UP)—The government completed all arrangements for immediate mobilization of the Roumanian armed forces today.

The decree, published in the official gazette, authorized the war ministry to assume control of all industrial enterprises in Roumania.

"POOR MAN'S JURY" DEBATED AT PARLEY

PASADENA, Calif., Sept. 24.—(UP)—The "poor man's jury" was before the California State Bar for consideration today. The 1000 lawyers in conventions here had before them a resolution urging that counties pay jury fees in civil cases. This would permit jury trials in lawsuits brought by indigents.

The bar after an hour of bitter dispute last night voted to establish a public relations department to improve relations between the legal profession and the press and the public.

Milton Marks of San Francisco fought the resolution. He claimed it would reduce the dignity of the profession and put the bar in the same position as advertisers of manufactured products. President Lewis P. Lane of the Long Beach Bar Association retorted that his city's bar intended to set up a department regardless of the state bar's attitude. The vote overwhelmingly favored the proposal.

Faces Death For Killing Officer

RYEGATE, Mont., Sept. 24.—(UP)—A district court jury last night returned a verdict of guilty, with death sentence mandatory, against Lee Simpson, 50-year-old Lavinia rancher, for the first degree murder of Undersheriff Arthur Burford in a gun battle.

Simpson paled as he heard the verdict, but walked alone from the crowded courtroom without aid. District Judge W. L. Ford set September 27 for sentencing, but defense counsel was given until December 1 to file a bill of exceptions.

State witnesses testified that Simpson confessed he killed Burford and Gerald and Robert MacDonald, employees on his ranch, but Simpson was charged only with the one killing. Mrs. Gertrude Simpson faces trial as an accomplice for helping her husband dispose of the bodies of the MacDonalds. Simpson pleaded insanity.

CZECHS MUST EVACUATE OR NAZIS WILL MARCH

BERLIN, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Germany has set Oct. 1 as the deadline for withdrawal of Czech troops and police from the Sudeten areas to be ceded by Czechoslovakia to Germany, it was disclosed.

A summary of Adolf Hitler's demands showed that Prague must agree to the withdrawal by that date, and that German troops and police will take over as soon as the Czechs have moved out. Areas 70 per cent German will be taken over immediately; others with a heavy German population after a plebiscite.

No Guarantee

The summary did not mention the Polish and Hungarian demands for slices of Czechoslovakia, but an authoritative statement given to the press declared Germany has no intention of guaranteeing the borders of the new Czechoslovakia against the self-determination claims of other nationalities.

The statement said: "Political circles here have observed in the foreign press the most varied opinions on the question of whether Germany is prepared to guarantee the new borders of Czechoslovakia after solution of the Sudeten German problem. 'Circles here hold the view that there is no possibility of a German guaranty of the new Czech borders insofar as this guaranty could under certain conditions obligate Germany to protect these borders, even when they concern the right of self-determination of other nationalities.'"

FRANCE ORDERS TROOPS MOBILIZED

PARIS, Sept. 24.—(UP)—France ordered partial mobilization of her army, navy and air force reserves today.

Immediately afterward Gen. Marie Gustave Gamelin, chief of staff of the fighting forces, presided at a meeting of the superior council of national defense, the supreme military body whose members include the most brilliant men of the high command.

The government published a declaration that Germany never had any intentions on Czech soil.

England On Edge As Chamberlain Returns

LONDON, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Great Britain completed preparations today for instant mobilization on land, sea and in the air if Adolf Hitler's "final" memorandum is rejected by Czechoslovakia.

Chamberlain returned by air from Prague, preceded a meeting of the full cabinet. Parliament may be summoned next week. All concerned have agreed that the issue of peace or war is now clearly defined.

Chamberlain Silent

He was met by Viscount Halifax, foreign secretary, Dr. Erich Kordt, charge d'affaires of the German embassy, and Dr. Erich von Selzam, first secretary.

Chamberlain said into a radio microphone that he was unable to comment on the European situation until he had reported to the British and French governments.

"I trust that all concerned will continue efforts to solve the Czech problems peacefully, because on that turns the peace of Europe in our time."

Czechs struggled against the deep-seated anxiety as Britons waited to learn what had happened at the prime minister's conference with Adolf Hitler—a "final" talk on the Czechoslovak minority crisis.

In France, partial mobilization of the army, navy and air force was ordered.

Czechs Mobilized

In Czechoslovakia 2,000,000 men were under arms.

In Italy Premier Benito Mussolini asserted that Hitler had given to Czechoslovakia until October 1 to accept the British plan, and he implied plainly that in test between the democracies and the totalitarian nations, Germany and Italy would fight as one nation.

Reserves Ready

Naval reserves will be called immediately if needed.

Britain's preparations became known simultaneously with news of the partial mobilization by France and Belgium, and preparations for mobilization by Roumania, where the war ministry took over all industries.

Chamberlain's discussion with the inner cabinet of Hitler's memorandum, which he has forwarded to Germany.

BRITISH PREMIER IN FINAL EFFORT TO AVERT WORLD WAR

GOESBERG, Germany, Sept. 24.—(UP)—Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain, carrying with him the hope of all Europe, returned to London today to make what it seemed must be the final effort to avert a war.

In his final conference with Hitler, which ended early this morning, Chamberlain had agreed to submit a new set of proposals to the Czechoslovak government, regarding the method of surrendering the Sudeten minority area to Germany.

Without awaiting the approval of his own cabinet, Chamberlain submitted the proposals direct to Prague.

Up to Czechs

The fact was that Prague was cut off from nearly all European capitals by telephone.

Watland, distinguished Red Cross field worker, representing the National Red Cross, who arrived in the chapter this morning and will be here until October 1, Dr. John Wehrly, chapter chairman, announced.

After one year as field representative for Nevada, Miss Watland is taking over, as field representative, the Southern California territory, except Los Angeles county. She will present new phases and features of the Roll Call to local board and Roll Call committee members. A national goal of 6,000,000 members has been announced by Chairman Norman H. Davis.

Assignments in such major disasters as the North Sacramento Flood, 1928; Pacific Northwest floods, 1934; Eastern Spring floods, 1936; Ohio-Mississippi Valley floods, 1937; and the Southern California floods, 1938, have qualified Miss Watland as a thoroughly experienced Red Cross disaster relief worker. She is a graduate of the University of Minnesota.

Meetings with Red Cross groups in the chapter area and with Roll Call chairmen are being scheduled.

DODGE LINE TO BE SHOWN WEDNESDAY

Headed by Oscar Kipp, general manager of the L. D. Coffing company, the entire sales staff of the concern will go to Los Angeles on Wednesday to preview the 1939 Dodge line.

Among the advance reports regarding details of the 1939 Dodge is the attention being given to new standards of motoring luxury in the Dodge "Luxury Liner", a new suggested name for the Dodge car.

The new Dodge car of 1939 has been designed and planned to be a monument to the company's progress through the past quarter century. Initial plans for car-marking the anniversary models with extra special values and attributes were advanced more than a year ago so that the 1939 cars would coincide with the silver anniversary of the company.

No cost has been spared in making the new Dodge an outstanding example of the finest in motor cars, advance notices of company officials stated.

Complete information on the new Dodge will be available at the L. D. Coffing company, 311 East Fifth street, on and after Thursday of next week, Kipp said today.

Person and Hollingsworth, contractors on the highway and railroad relocation project in Santa Ana canyon, yesterday was also awarded the contract for constructing piers and abutments for a railroad bridge on the new route, the figure being $134,219.60.

This bid was the lowest of seven submitted to the county supervisors for the job. While it was $20,000 above the county's estimate of the probable cost, due to it was believed to allow for possible delays due to wet weather, the figure nevertheless was lower than the estimate of the Santa Fe railroad company.

PAINTS CZECH ROAD TO FATE

The Czech nation was well on its way toward solving its problems until the Hitler-fostered Sudeten revolt thrust them into their present difficulties, according to T. H. Glenn, Santa Ana junior college instructor, yesterday at a meeting of the Orange County League of Women Voters at the Ebell clubhouse.

Glenn reported to the group in a tour made of Europe during the past summer in which he stated that Czechoslovakia had been going ahead in economical and political progress as well as social advancement.

Survey Capitals
"Only two per cent of the population was unemployed when I was there a few months ago," Glenn said.
Glenn also reported on conditions as he had found them in other capitals of Europe and gave an interesting description of the preparations for war in France, particularly along the Maginot fortifications between France and Germany.

In the business session following a luncheon Mrs. J. E. Paul, chairman of the membership committee announced that a membership tea would be held at the home of Mrs. Loyal King, 2346 North Park boulevard on next Thursday. The affair will be from 2 to 5:30 p.m.

BUILDING AND REMODELING NEWS

This Small Home Will Be Popular Everywhere

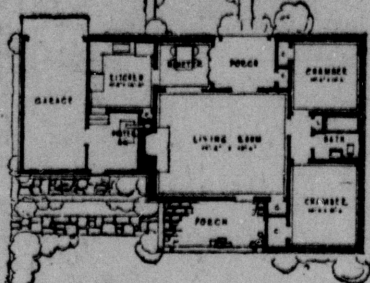

Monterey-type House Designed by Randolph Evans for Leisurely Comfortable Living.

LIKE its historic ancestor—the ranch house—this Monterey type house is justly famed for its gracious hospitality. Introduced first into California, it spread with astonishing rapidity to all parts of the country and is now as much at home in New England as it is in the Southwest. It is perfectly designed for leisurely, comfort-loving people.

It is a close-to-the-earth kind of house. A low-pitched roof, covered with distinctively colored asphalt shingles, reaches down almost to the tops of the garden hollyhocks, emphasizing the length and rambling beauty of its old-fashioned exterior.

In plan, it is a model of modern compactness. A large living room, dominated by an open fireplace, looks out over both front and rear gardens, and is but a few steps from the two corner bedrooms, an efficiently ordered kitchen and the built-in garage.

Several other features show the thoughtfulness exhibited by its well-known architect, Randolph Evans, who designed it for the Monthly Small House Club of 227 East 45th Street, New York City.

The dinette, for instance, can be extended almost into the garden for summer dining by opening the paired French doors that separate it from the covered porch, and the utility room, containing laundry trays, heating and hot water plants, can be made into a laundry and store room by building a small cellar to accommodate the heating equipment.

A roof of mineral surfaced asphalt shingles adds much to the safety and beauty of this romantic looking, but very practical home. It forms a fire-resistant shield that permanently protects the roof from flying sparks and burning embers, one of the chief causes of conflagration in the United States.

Courtesy Monthly Small House Club

Whether built far out in the country, where it may sometime be endangered by brush fires or burning outbuildings, or built in town with many close-by neighbors, such a fire-safe roof is an indispensable protection. More than 600 cities and towns in this country require such a fire-resistant roof by law.

Another illustration of the sound specifications prepared by its architect is the mineral wool insulation in all side walls and above the ceiling. Mineral wool is also placed under the floor so that there will be no danger of cold floors in this cellarless house.

A family of three or four can be comfortably accommodated in this simple house. Approximately 47 feet wide, it should stand on a 75 foot lot, or roomier, to give sufficiently large side yards, and when finally completed, with flagstone walks, brass door knocker and shutters painted to match the asphalt shingles of the roof, it will seem a fit part of the land on which it stands.

Though expensive in appearance, Randolph Evans reports that this house can be built for from $4,800 to $5,500, depending upon its locale.

REALTY BOARD ACCEPTS NEW SET OF BY-LAWS

Formal adoption of the by-laws of the organization that were revised at last week's meeting and an address by Judge James B. Tucker were the features of interest at the meeting of the Santa Ana Realty Board yesterday at the Rosemore cafe.

Following the business session William F. Croddy discussed the problem of migrants in California and especially in Kern county.

Tells of Difficulties
"Conditions in Kern county are almost unbelievable," Croddy told the realtors. "In one locality where approximately 6,000 of these migrants are quartered it is almost impossible for the citizens of the town to get their mail."

"Being government property, the local police authorities have no right to apprehend criminals in the government owned area and constitutes a real menace to the citizens of the area. Once a criminal gets into the government district he is safe unless he is caught coming out."

Conferring Today
"These are only a few of the every day instances that are occurring in the Kern county area," Croddy said.

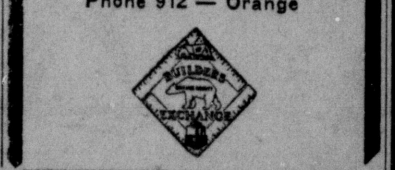

The Southern California Economic conference is meeting in Los Angeles today to consider what steps can be taken to alleviate the situation, Croddy said.

ORANGE COUNTY BUILDING, REMODELING NEWS

NEW BUILDING HAS LATEST TYPE WINDOWS

Demonstration of the first commercial use of small pane glass display windows in the county is being made at the new Christenson Lighting company, 709 South Main street, according to Nylin P. Hurd, contractor for the building.

"This new type of window now is featured in metropolitan centers," Hurd said today. "Not only does the window make for greater strength but has a beauty and home-like appearance that is very attractive."

Duplicate for $2500

The new building designed and constructed by Hurd is modern in lines and of frame and stucco construction. It can be duplicated for approximately $2500, Hurd said.

Hurd has been in the contracting business for the past 15 years and for the past two years has been operating under his own name. Among the larger constructions supervised by Hurd are the Holmes Avenue Grammar School in Los Angeles and the recent additions to the Newport Beach grammar school.

Building materials for the Christenson building, including the hardware, lumber and insulation was supplied by the Barr Lumber company. Ray Gardell supplied the plaster work for the new building and Jack Sargent was in charge of the painting for the job.

New Building Has Novel Display Windows

First use of small pane windows as a display window in the county is one of the unusual features of the new Christenson Lighting company building, shown above, that was designed and constructed by Nylin P. Hurd, local contractor. Building materials for the new structure were supplied by the Barr Lumber company while plastering for the job was handled by Ray Gardell. Jack Sargent was the paint sub-contractor on the Christenson store.

INSURABLE FEATURE OF REAL ESTATE INFLUENCES VALUES

BY RAY GOODCELL

President of The Santa Ana Realty Board

Values of real estate improvements are indirectly influenced by the fact that they are insurable. Few, if any, in considering the value of property, take it into consideration, but without insurance, the hazard of ownership might be a serious one.

Because personal property is insurable, one does not, in purchasing a home, have to consider whether or not it is built of frame or of more fire-resistant material. Due to the low cost of fire insurance, the difference in cost being nominal to be considered. Wood shingles, against composition, take but a small difference of 10 cents on the $100.00.

Cites Least Demand
Without this insurance service, however, ownership of real estate would not be so desirable, and therefore, real estate would not be known as the most solid of all investments. The land itself would be weakened because there would be less demand for it as security for capital, both in the form of ownership and for the purpose of loans. Loans would necessarily have to be made on a lower percentage of the value.

And whether or not we approve of large corporations, the only reason that insurance is on a basis of cost easily afforded by everyone is because of the nature of the organization handling it. For instance, an individual couldn't come to you and say, "I'll insure your home for $5000 against fire damage for three years at a cost to you of $30 to $35, or about three cents a day." It wouldn't be economically possible. The chances would be too great. But he might go to 10,000 people and do it, because the chances there would be lessened in proportion to the number insured. And if the 10,000 policies were scattered among several communities, the element of risk would be even less.

Often Times Liable
There are different kinds of fire insurance and several kinds of companies, including stock and mutual. Stock companies write policies without liability to the insured. Often times in mutual companies the insured is liable, and becomes, as it were, the insurer as well as the insured, subject to assessments, if necessary. To offset the risk taken, he has also the benefit of lower rates, and any dividends that might accrue during the life of the policy.

Fire insurance, properly placed, is most certainly an inexpensive source of protection. It has much to do with property ownership, and this direct connection has been the cause of the real estate agent practicing always acting as insurance agent. Business property insurance rates are based on type of structure, occupancy, and fire hazards, so it, too, offers protection to property owners at proportionately low cost. Of course, all the credit for the low rates cannot be given to the insurance companies.

Factors With Companies
Our own fire and water departments, maintenance cost of which is paid out of our taxes, aid materially and are factors with the insurance companies, and their rates are based on the adequacy of the departments' ability to perform, the supply of water available, and other accessory conditions. Real estate and fire insurance are inseparable. Each depends on the other. Any parasitical tendency that might seem to exist is purely imaginary, and the final result is that what benefits one is ultimately a benefit to all.

LIVING SPACE OUTDOORS IS TIMELY THEME

BY IRENE McFAUL
Santa Ana Architect

In a week when the temperature has consistently crowded 95 degrees F. it seems appropriate to make a few remarks about outdoor living space as an essential to any good plan, however small.

In other countries having climates similar to ours, such as Spain, Italy and Mexico, householders have built their domiciles around gardens and patios and court yards, for untold generations. But in Southern California, we've brought our basic plans from such places as Redbank, New Jersey; Gary, Indiana, and Lansing, Mich., with the result that we do not take advantage of what is advertised as the world's best climate. We face our living rooms on noisy, dusty streets, and make it as inconvenient as possible to use our gardens.

Remember 3 Points

To accomplish satisfactory outdoor living arrangements, the house should be designed with three things in mind. First: low windows, or French doors from living or dining room should frame the garden. With such an arrangement the garden comes into the room and makes it seem gay, more airy and larger.

Second: Kitchen should be located so that service to terrace or garden is accomplished without a three-mile hike. Third, the outdoor living space should have privacy, and protection from sun and wind. There are times when sun and wind are highly invigorating, but it's very annoying to have a playful breeze throw dust in your chocolate éclair, or to have the sun make patterns on your favorite newspaper.

Women say, "My husband doesn't like eating out of doors. The food gets cold." Or, "It's too much trouble. After I've worked all day, I am not going to cart the food way out to the back yard." But my dear ladies, outdoor dining takes a little technique which may be somewhat as follows: Outdoor dining space should be adjacent to kitchen, and as nearly as possible on the same level. In the kitchen, you arrange some large slots for light weight bamboo traps. You get a few covered dishes. Now don't set the table ahead of time for the birds and pet animals to disturb; but set up two trays with table service. When the food is ready and hot, place it in the covered dishes on the third tray.

Then three members of the family seize the trays and bear them in triumphant procession to the table. With a little practice, and a little training of the family, it becomes easier than serving in the dining room, and infinitely more comfortable on hot summer evenings. Incidentally, the dining room is released for summer sewing, or other activities.

Expense Unnecessary

And there are other activities than eating to be carried on in the garden. There are playthings, resting and even "flying" wood. Furthermore, your garden living room need not be expensive. You CAN go in for pools and rare oriental fish, and chromium plated furniture, and stone flagging. Or, you can use a few canvas chairs, and a secondhand table, and a few potted plants.

Hence, when you're planning a house, think of the garden, too. It really is an integral part of the problem.

Questions Before the House

By WILBUR BARR

To all persons interested in building, whether prospective owner, architect, decorator, contractor, craftsman, materials merchant, or whomever, the most important item today is the appearance of Life magazine with 22 pages devoted to pictures of houses and house plans, and much printed information regarding the present low cost of home building and of financing home building.

They explain the why of the strange fact that Americans have been spending more on the purchase of radios than on new homes. Architects Commission.

Attic Room

The grand thing about an attic room is that it's just as happy with the simple things of life and casual, simple accessories as it would be with the more elaborate things. And it is an ideal quarter to hand over to the young son of the house. He'll feel it's his own domain. . . the whole floor to himself and only the roof above him.

I'd suggest that you make it as thoroughly masculine as possible . . . not austere or ascetically so . . . but manly, even if he's only a twelve year old. It goes without saying that the floor must have a good, durable stain—one that will stand strenuous treatment—and woodwork and doors that are easily washable after the kicks of hurrying feet and prints of smudgy fingers. Your dealer will advise you as to the proper material. As for the ceiling treatment, quaint attic rooms under the eaves usually have sloping roof-lines and really call for the same treatment as the walls. It gives an illusion of height.

Below are a few suggestions which may appeal to you or which may give you ideas of your own. Paint the walls and ceilings a soft, dawn gray, using a quick-drying paint. Color the floor with a rug leaning toward a brown shade—not too light (think of those feet and the condition they may be in at times). Get a bed which sits low off the floor and which has a very low head board . . . no footboard . . . and stain it a natural wood color. As a coverlet use a rough, heavy cotton of rich marine blue and applique a monogram on the center. There should be a night table by the bed with a lamp easily within reach. . . one with a loosely woven off-white cotton shade above a blue lacquered wooden base.

For a room of this sort the makers of unfinished furniture are friends indeed. Practically all the furniture can be bought in this state and finished to your own taste. A study table, a straight back chair to set before it, a chest of drawers, and quaint book shelves and cases, certainly. Nothing adds so much to the charm of a room as books and a well-lighted, comfortable spot for reading them. And a child appreciates this as much as a grown-up.

Have one comfortable easy chair in the room and tailor it fastidiously in yellow homespun plaided in browns. Place gray venetian blinds at the windows, taped in the same blue, and for drapes use the aforementioned rough cotton which was used as a bedspread. And don't forget a wooden bowl of apples placed well within reach of the easy chair.

There you have a very first-rate third floor . . . the usual bughouse of the housewife. In fact, you should be downright proud of it.

FEATURED SCREEN ATTRACTIONS AT SANTA ANA THEATERS

Wayne Morris and Claire Trevor, above, are co-starred in the dramatic Technicolor production of Peter B. Kyne's famous novel, "Valley of the Giants," which opens tomorrow at the Broadway theater along with "The Lady Objects," featuring Lanny Ross and Gloria Stuart. Both are $250,000 Movie Quiz contest pictures.

LAUREL HARDY TO SHOW SOON

In "Block-Heads," new comedy starring Laurel and Hardy and coming to the Broadway theater next Thursday, the popular comedians find themselves in a swank, modern apartment home.

The dignity of their surroundings, however, offers no bar to their continuous merriment. In fact, the austerity of the backgrounds makes their famous sags all the more ludicrous, and the current comedy contains an abundance of side-splitting situations, according to advance notices.

The supporting cast includes Patricia Ellis, Minna Gombell, Billy Gilbert, one of filmdom's outstanding dialect comedians, and James Finlayson.

Laurel impersonates America's man of the hour, whose most recent exploit has made the front pages of the country's newspapers. Oliver Hardy, once his war buddy, hastens to invite the hero to share his home, but his wife has other ideas. PAT O'BRIEN IN NEW BREEZY ROLE

"Garden of the Moon," Warner Bros.' newest musical, with Pat O'Brien, Margaret Lindsay and John Payne in top roles, will have its local premiere at the Broadway theater a week from tomorrow, it was announced today. The picture, another $250,000 Movie Quiz contest film, is based on the recent magazine serial of the same name.

The story deals with a hot and tricky feud between a hotel manager, played by O'Brien, and an impetuous young band leader, played by Payne, who in this picture makes his debut as a singing, romantic star.

Five swingy new tunes by Johnny Mercer, Harry Warren and Al Dubin, are introduced and another notable feature is the presentation of Jimmy Fidler, radio's famous movie commentator, who plays himself. Joe Venuti's swing band furnishes the captivating melody.

Mirthful woe, Laurel and Hardy muddle through in their own inimitable style.

Jimmie Fidler In Hollywood

HOLLYWOOD, Sept. 24.—Memories that bless and burn: When Wallace Beery, playing in "Min and Bill," paid a liver-footed electrician ten bucks to break in a new pair of shoes for him, when Fay Wray fell off the pier at Catalina Island and was dragged from the briny by Gary Cooper, when Joan Crawford, then unmarried and our queen of heyhey, wore a wedding ring to give herself an "interesting" past, when Myrna Loy was an instructor in a little dancing school near M-G-M.

When Cecil B. de Mille showed me one of his early notebooks containing this entry: "Hal Rosch (cowboy) wants $5.00 a day—too much." When Wallace Beery and Gloria Swanson lived in a little house in Edendale and she called him to dinner by hammering a Harvey House gong. When a free-for-all fight broke out on a Catalina Island location—and Charles Laughton survived the hostilities by hiding under a table. When I found Clark Gable starring at his own name in lights (the picture was a "A Free Soul") and crying because his dead step-mother couldn't see it with him.

When Mabel Normand stopped the festivities one night in the Coconut Grove in order to take up a collection for a down-and-out ex-star. When I mistook Cullen Landis for Rex Lease (I never could tell those two apart) and earned a bitter enemy.

William Law, in Hollywood, is an unimportant bit player; in San Francisco's Chinatown he is a merchant prince, owner of the Columbia Company and head of the powerful Six Families Tong. The checks that he receives for his movie work are only pin money to a man of his wealth, but he has a passion for acting. Whenever a Chinese role is offered, Law flies here from Frisco, and if the bit lasts long enough, makes two or three round trips, always by plane, to take care of his many business interests. The other day he finished a part in Twentieth Century-Fox's "Girl from Brooklyn" and collected his pay check—$150. The expenses he incurred in order to play the bit amounted to nearly $2500.

Patrons of a Long Beach community playhouse were amazed when Freddie Bartholomew showed up last night with his curls plastered down on his head—followed by his Aunt Cissy, who wore one of the dizziest hats ever seen in these parts. They stalked in, saw the show, and stalked out again without exchanging a word. And this is the amusing "why" of it all: Freddie doesn't like extreme hats; Aunt Cissy doesn't like plastered-down hair. When they started for the theatre, she donned a new bonnet and insisted on wearing it in spite of Freddie's protests. Not to be outdone, he returned to the house and literally drenched his locks in hair oil. The afore-mentioned coolness was the result.

A few years ago, he was a rising star in silent films, but with the arrival of talkies, his foreign accent proved too noticeable and he was cast aside. In desperation, he and his beautiful wife finally made a bargain. They would divorce, put their child in a school, and go their separate ways, free to cash in on any opportunities that offered. He became the gigolo of a musical comedy star; she eventually married a wealthy producer. And I wonder if he is content with his present job—an assistant directorship in the studio of his ex-wife's present spouse.

Driving to work this morning, Alice Faye noted that a car was apparently following hers and began to suspect that a "masher" was at its wheel. Suspicion turned to certainty when the car pulled up beside hers at a stop signal and a man's voice called. "Going my way, beautiful?" Alice, her face flaming, looked neither to right nor left—just stepped on the gas and tried to get away. But her former was too persistent—when she turned in at the studio gates, he followed. And right there Alice lost her temper. Slamming on her brakes, she got out of her car resolved to dish out a piece of her mind—and suddenly did a double take. The man was Darryl Zanuck, king of all that can be surveyed from the Twentieth Century administration building. When he told me about it, at noon, he was still laughing.

A postcard from Songwriter Harley Rosso reads: "Dear Jimmie—I parked in front of your house today because my battery having gone dead, I needed a downhill grade to start my car. And it struck me that many of our movie friends are parking themselves now in a position so they can get going—downhill!"

KYNE TALE TO SCREEN SUNDAY

Wayne Morris and Claire Trevor head the cast of "Valley of the Giants," the Technicolor picture based on the famous Peter B. Kyne novel of the same name, which opens tomorrow at the Broadway theater with "The Lady Objects," starring Lanny Ross and Gloria Stuart. Both are $250,000 Movie Quiz contest pictures.

"Valley of the Giants" is the story of the successful fight waged to prevent the utter despoliation of California's famous redwood forests by ruthless eastern lumber interests, represented by Charles Bickford, around the turn of the century.

While it is concerned with one local aspect of the fight, telling in highly exciting manner of the clash between one such despoiler and an altruistic young local lumberman, it is typical of the situation throughout the redwood country at that time. Graft and corruption, legalistic trickery and physical violence all have their part in the story, but it is the last-mentioned that gives the new picture its most thrilling moments.

Supporting the two stars is a notable cast which includes Frank McHugh, Charles Bickford, Alan Hale, Jack LaRue, Donald Crisp, John Littel and Dick Purcell. A dramatic, heart-stirring record of a woman's inability to happily combine a domestic with a professional career makes "The Lady Objects" a thrilling tale of modern romance. The girl's success as an attorney leads to the break-up of her home. Her architect husband, unable to live on his wife's income, becomes a night club singer. The death of the "other woman" leads to a sensational trial in which the woman lawyer defends her husband.

GABLE, MYRNA LOY JOINED IN NEW ROMANCE WITH ALL-STARS

Thrills in the strenuous life of a newswoman, and romance between Clark Gable and the adventurous of the lens and Myrna Loy as a daring aviatrix, come to the West Coast theater next Friday in "Too Hot to Handle," dramatic story of the love of two people whose lives are a constant quest for excitement.

Gable and Walter Pidgeon play rival newsmen covering fighting in the Orient. Constantly using trick and device to scoop each other, they clash when Miss Loy, as the aviatrix, attempts a "mercy flight" with serum, and Gable, barred from the field, reaches it in an ambulance but wrecked her

West Coast Offers Grid Film Comedy

An entirely new and novel plot features the college football comedy, "Hold That Co-Ed," which opened a local engagement last night at the West Coast theater with John Barrymore in the role of a budget-bouncing, co-ed chasing governor who mixes good football with bad statecraft.

George Murphy, Marjorie Weaver, Joan Davis and Jack Haley contribute to the riotous comedy in the picture, which features several lively new songs.

For those who take their football seriously there are some of the most exciting gridiron sequences ever filmed. For those who don't there is Joan Davis, who turns out to be the world's best goal-kicker and the only female fullback in existence.

The story is particularly topical. Barrymore appropriates $10,000,000 of the in-payers' money to build up the state university and particularly the football team, the idea being a winning team will bring him tremendous publicity for his forthcoming election campaign. Barrymore promptly hires two man-mountain wrestlers to bolster up the line and then adds Joan Davis, who holds a long distance record for drop-kicking, to the backfield. The team, of course, is sensational.

The second attraction is "Mysterious Mr. Moto," another in the series of mystery dramas starring Peter Lorre as the suave Japanese sleuth of fiction and film fame.

to a sensational trial in which the woman lawyer defends her husband.

Wallace Beery, Elizabeth Allan and Warner Baxter, above, appear on the State screen beginning tomorrow in a stirring dramatic-romance of the sea, "Slave Ship," full of action and thrills. Second feature offers two-fisted Charles Starrett in "Cattle Raiders," western action-mystery film.

ALL-STAR CASTS DOUBLE-BILL SOON

Bubbling with humor and naturalness that made the original Kate Douglas Wiggin story, one of the best-sellers of its day, the film version of "Mother Carey's Chickens" opens at Walker's Friday for a two-day run. With it, brought back by popular request, is "Bordertown," with the inimitable Paul Muni and Bette Davis. Short subjects and world news are added attractions.

"Mother Carey's Chickens" deals with the interesting careers of a young school teacher, in love with the older daughter, the fatherless Careys take over a tumble-down house in the country, remodel it into a teachers' boarding house. Unforeseen complications arise and the climax is charged with hilarity. Fay Bainter, Anne Shirley, Ruby Keeler, Jackie Moran and Frank Albertson are among the well-selected cast.

"Bordertown" is a stark, realistic picture of the colorful life in a town on the American border with its night club, and gambling resorts frequented by millionaires and bored society women seeking diversion. Muni is cast in role of a foreign youth who rises to riches and power as proprietor of a fashionable gaming hall. Margaret Lindsay has an important role.

According to estimates, the average woman working about her own home will cover as much as 13 miles in a single day.

BROADWAY WALKER'S WEST COAST STATE MOTION PICTURES ARE YOUR BEST ENTERTAINMENT

HAROLD LLOYD HERE SUNDAY

Harold Lloyd returns to the screen—at Walker's beginning tomorrow—after a more than a year of absence, in "Professor Beware," hilarious comedy of the sort which has made him famous. The second feature offers the "Dead End" kids in "Little Tough Guy," an astonishing document of reckless youth. Short subjects will be added to the program.

In "Professor Beware," story of a down-and-out archaeologist in search of a job, Lloyd has surrounded himself with an able supporting cast which includes Ray-William Frawley, Cora Witherspoon and his new leading lady, Phyllis Welch.

Hilarious hi-jinx are in order when Lloyd starts a screwy country jaunt in search of a job. It seems that Lloyd, employed as an Egyptologist in a museum, loses his pants . . . and his job in an effort to help a beautiful girl get a screen test. Penniless, with the law at his heels, and a pretty girl hotfooting it after him, his adventures follow in a whirl.

"Little Tough Guy" is a simple powerful narrative about what happens to one family when tragedy strikes. It begins when the father is sent to jail on a murder charge and follows the mother, son and daughter after they move to cheap quarters in a sordid section of the city.

After the son joins a young gang of street hoodlums he begins a series of escapades which build to a breath-taking climax.

Harold Lloyd, above, appears in one of the most hilarious comedies of his career, "Professor Beware," opening at Walker's tomorrow. Such outstanding players as Lionel Stander, Raymond Walburn, Cora Witherspoon, are in the cast. "Little Tough Guy," with the "Dead End" kids, is second offering.

MYSTERY THRILLS AND COMEDY SHOW

"Mystery House," a "whodunit" film starring Dick Purcell, with Ann Sheridan, Anne Nagel and William Hopper, comes to the State screen Wednesday along with "The Society Girls," featuring Patricia Ellis and Jack Hulbert. "All American Drawback," an Edgar Bergen-Charlie McCarthy short, also screens.

"Mystery House" tells of murder in a remote hunting lodge and its eventual solution through the artful work of Detective Purcell assisted by Nurse Sheridan. Both figure importantly in a really sensational scene which provides solution of the mystery. Romance has an important place in the cleverly handled plot. Among the delightful cast are Hugh O'Connell and Sheila Bromley.

"The Gaily Girls," a merry comedy, tells the story of a young millionaire stock broker who poses as a reporter to win the heart of a beautiful chorus girl and, as the result of a series of mad es-

Slave Ship Days Shown Tomorrow

The notable bulwark of motion picture grandeur, the sea, has served the screen well both as arch-villain and as the scene of many stirring adventures, comes once again to the fore in the important production, "Slave Ship," starring Warner Baxter and Wallace Beery, coming to the State screen tomorrow.

Hard-riding, fast-shooting cowboys and treacherous cattle-stealing rustlers will race across the screen in the second feature, "Cattle Raiders," starring two-fisted Charles Starrett.

In "Slave Ship," Baxter plays a Yankee sea captain who plans to give up the slave traffic but who is double-crossed by his mutinous crew, under the influence of Beery. Thus, the voyage he planned as a honeymoon with his young bride, Elizabeth Allan, becomes a slave-running adventure with the couple continually in danger of death. Mickey Rooney, George Sanders and Joseph Schildkraut have prominent spots in the cast of this excellent film far-

In "Cattle Raiders," Starrett portrays the role of a husky young cowboy who returns home to find himself branded a murderer. How he breaks down the incriminating evidence against him and forces the actual killer to reveal himself furnishes a thrill-packed story. Among those in a nicely chosen cast is Jim Thorpe, famous Indian athlete. "Mysterious Pilot," serial, also screens.

Hold that pose, Governor Barrymore! And what a rumpus on the campus as he takes over the state college for the craziest campaign that ever made vote-chasing history. With him in "Hold That Co-Ed," now showing at the West Coast theater, are George Murphy and Marjorie Weaver, upper right, Joan Davis, center, and Jack Haley, left. The second feature is "Mysterious Mr. Moto," starring Peter Lorre in another thrilling mystery play.

WALKER GIVES CONTRAST BILL

That bugaboo, the ambulance chaser, is hilariously highlighted in "The Chaser," opening at Walker's Wednesday and featuring Dennis O'Keefe, Ann Morris, Nat Pendleton and Henry O'Neill. The second feature brings Anna May Wong, Lola Lane and Anthony Averill in "When Were You Born?" Warner Brothers mystery thriller based on astrology.

"The Chaser" story, a comedic relation of the incidents attended upon the unique profession of chasing ambulances with both fun and profit in view, sustains laughter from the opening sequence to a fade-out which is both startling and hilarious.

The story starts with O'Keefe revolved at the activities of the street railway company in settling accident claims for little or no money, embarking on a campaign to obtain rights for poor people injured in accidents.

Two elements are interwoven in "When Were You Born?" by having an astrologer—played by Miss Wong—apply the methods of that ancient science to the solution of a murder mystery. World news and short subjects are added.

Prize Play Made Into Film Scoop

Frank Capra's newest masterpiece, a screen version of "You Can't Take It With You," hailed as even better than the Pulitzer Prize stage play of the same name by George S. Kaufman and Moss Hart, has been booked for an early showing at the Broadway theater, it was announced today. Heading the stellar cast are Jean Arthur, James Stewart, Lionel Barrymore, Edward Arnold, Mischa Auer, Spring Byington, and Ann Miller. Others in major roles are Donald Meek, Dub Taylor, Samuel S. Hinds, Mary Forbes, Ann Doran, Clarence Wilson and others.

Wedding Theme Applied To Rehearsal Dinner For Bridal Party

That bridal theme which at present dominates the life of lovely Frances Was, tonight's bride-elect of Jack Lindsey of Tustin, was apparent last night when young people of the wedding party and a few friends, preceded the wedding rehearsal with a dinner party in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Frank J. Was, 617 Orange avenue.

Mrs. Walter Bean has arrived from San Jose for her granddaughter's wedding and last night aided Mr. and Mrs. Was in receiving their daughter's friends. She and Mrs. Was served the dinner menu after the group was assembled and its members found their places at the big table arranged in the dining room.

Much thought had gone to the arrangement of this table, for it reflected the dominant bridal theme in every respect. Spread with heavy damask, it was centered with the quaintest cluster of vine tendrils imaginable, the unique Chinese fleece, whose leafy sprays are starred with little silvery flower clusters. These with white tapers in graduated heights soaring from silver candlesticks, completed a scene of beauty.

Place cards were in bride and bridegroom design, and were accompanied by intriguing small packages, in white ribbons and tissues. These contained the gifts Miss Was and Mr. Lindsey had chosen for their attendants. They were for the bridesmaids, small pins made up of their several initials, and for the men, similar monograms developed in the chains.

Miss Was had one of the pins made up for her little sister, Margaret Ann ("Peggy"). Was, who will be her flower girl, but who dined out last night with her father instead of remaining for the rehearsal dinner party.

Members of the wedding party included with the young affianced pair, their maid of honor and best man, Miss Jean Reuter of this city and Bill Pyles of Huntington Park; the Misses Georgianne ("Polly") Angne, Ione Hooven, Charlotte Mock, Anne Wetherell and Mrs. Chris Ema, Santa Ana; Messrs. Bill Lindsey, Truscott Lindsey, Frank Was Jr., and Justus Wohlbrink of Huntington Park. The group included also Mrs. Bill Lindsey, Mrs. Truscott Lindsey, Chris Ema, Santa Ana, and the Misses Betty Bevans and Gayle Holaday of Huntington Park. Miss Holaday is the fiancée of Bill Pyles.

Before leaving for First Presbyterian church to rehearse for tonight's rites, the group enjoyed inspecting the array of handsome wedding gifts arranged in the sun room of the home.

Steak Bake Precedes Evening of Bridge

Enjoying a steak bake last night at Santiago park, Evening Social section members of Women's club took part in an informal affair climaxed with bridge play in the home of Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Dennis, 932 Louise street.

George Paes won first prize for his high score in cards. Others present were Mrs. Paes and Messrs. and Mesdames C. R. Walter, C. W. Clarke, F. A. Martin, G. V. Linsenbard, Herbert McVay, W. L. Harbert, H. M. Kinslow, R. B. Waldron, William Dennis, Clyde Cave, Mrs. Maude E. Edkins and Mrs. Earl Lepper.

The group will have a box supper in Halloween manner on the next meeting night, October 29, in the home of Mrs. E. O. Ahern, Irvine.

TRAVEL PLANS

Mrs. John Kirkland, 804 Hickory street is completing plans to leave Tuesday by Steamline for Missouri, where she will spend the next two weeks visiting with relatives.

Wait A Minute

Wasn't it Arthur Guiterman who suggested that "When the weather's torrid, you mustn't fret and squirm—just get out and hustle for a long cool worm?" Maybe Guiterman is that kind of a bird—but he doesn't fly around in our nice Sunny Southland during the west's own particular variation of Indian summer . . . A temperamental typewriter wrote summer for that final word, and we were tempted to let it stand as being peculiarly appropriate . . . All of which is by way of saying that some iconoclast denies that it was Mark Twain who said "Everybody talks about the weather but nobody does anything." Anyhow it sounds like it should have been Mark Twain . . . And rambling on as one does when its warmish, doesn't it seem strange that the man who is acclaimed as one of the world's greatest humorists, should also have written such gripping yet sardonic tragedy as "The Mysterious Stranger?" . . . and before we lay aside books, an interesting view of the accident through Oriental eyes, is "Japanese Woman in Europe," the most naive statement of which was Madame Ichikawa's attempt to describe the wine sacks down in Spain. She wrote, "They make them from pigs, cutting off the four legs and the head, and hollowing out the insides."

That interesting mother-son combination, Gerda (Famous Store) and Brooks (Alliance Mutual) Wright found their own solution to the summer date by dashing down to the beach for night swims . . . Julia (Travel Bureau) and Todd (Ins.) Hyde and Elaine and Henry (Electrical Supplies and Radios) Williams braved the warmth to go to the Rainbow Division ball in L. A. where Todd reminisced with former buddies while the others hobnobbed with Noo Yawk's Mayor LaGuardia, Filmland's Leo Carrillo, and other notables . . . Now that the Legion convention is ended, and we didn't get to go, 'snice to have seen Sandy Any's own Drum Corps rehearsing 'tother night in San Antonio park—an experience shared with many others . . . Wonder if any of our home folk had their time-tested summer straws blown to pieces by that small cannon which worked over time in Los Angeles Lawst Bawthright?

Well at last Charlotte and John Lacy (Title Co.) Taylor have that long anticipated baby daughter! The tiny girl is one of the innumerable J. Ebell additions, but isn't the first baby in the Taylor home, on account two small brothers welcoming her . . . Miriam and Frederick McMillan and their small fry, Kitty Jean and Joan, have come from Ventura to live here again near Frederick's work over in Long Beach. The small Jean is thrilled to be at Jefferson kindergarten where Mama Miriam went as a little girl . . . Ray (Pianist) Ramon's contingent of the Gus Arnheim orchestra gave such a good account of itself at the latest Comus club bing, that Leland (Ins.) Finley and others already started the ball to rolling for the next Tux and Gown dance, even tho it is still far in the future.

Sic transit gloria mundi for little white Peggy of the tapping paws who has been the canine member of Gladys and Burr (Music Store) Shafter's family circle since her puppyhood was coincident with the babyhood of Burr Jr. (High school) and little girlhood of Roberta (Jayce) Shafter . . . Those golden wedding bells you will hear tomorrow will chime for Adelaide and H. L. (Rancher) Hardy, who wedding marched in 1888 back in Binghamton, Penna. . . Margaret (Mrs. Robert) Kilburn is one of the cutest little blonde brides of the autumn with curly hair and a friendly smile . . . Margaret (U.C.L.A.) Sawyer is staying on in Santa Any this year to attend business college . . .

IM-PERTINENT FACTS . . . What's this we hear about George (Ins.) Faures and the attractive Mrs. King who is Queen so far as he is concerned? Anyhow we have heard it rumored that wedding bells will chime come October, with the North Main street home already picked out. . . Twinn Barbara (Stanford Women's Club) and Louise (Finance Co.) Rurup are so exactly alike with their ripe wheat hair and suntan complexions, that it is nice to be able to tell which from 'tother by the simple expedient of one of them wearing dark sunglasses—but WHICH ONE? . . . Lost: one golden opportunity to meet Fred (Screen Star) Astaire of the nimble feet, when he played the Sandy Any Country club course—guest of H. A. (Manager) Stevens . . . Mabel (Danigers)

Autumn's Hospitality Dominates Party at Country Club

Bridge play yesterday afternoon at Santa Ana Country club progressed in a charming setting which had been arranged for a monthly card party, augmented this time by an individual affair at which Mrs. J. E. Liebig entertained.

There were dahlias and zinnias in autumn colors arranged throughout the clubhouse. Mrs. Liebig received her guests for luncheon, which was served at a long table brightened with pompon zinnias. Miss Helen Andrews assisted her aunt in receiving and other details of the afternoon.

Mrs. Liebig had selected attractive table prizes to add to the enjoyment of her party. These were won by Mesdames R. G. Tutthill, Don Andrews, Anna Richards, B. Sharpless, A. G. Flagg and Marguerite Borgmeyer.

Two of the group also won prizes in the general country club party, with Mrs. Andrews scoring high among members, and Mrs. Tutthill, among guests. Mrs. Howard Rapp won second prize among members.

Mrs. George Walker and Mrs. Albert Harvey, hostesses at the general club party were assisted by Mrs. A. G. Flagg, Mrs. A. W. Ruton and Mrs. F. E. Mead poured tea, presiding at a cleverly-arranged table late in the afternoon. Suggesting the football season were the miniature field and tiny figures forming a centerpiece with red and orange flowers.

Anderson, all agog over a birthday celebration with lotsa gifts—but who sent the gorgeous red roses? . . . If vivacious Jess (Mrs. Howard) Rapp ever happens to drive away in your automobile, give her the benefit of the doubt. She declared the other day, she is never certain of her own car when several of similar make are parked together . . . Didja ever try drinking from a thimbleful of water? That's what it looked like when Robert (Gallenkamp's Tallest Man) Wadlow had himself a glass of water in at the Green Cat . . . That gay foursome, Betty Bradley, Betty (Mrs. Fredrick) Pinkston, Jo Flaherty and Harriet Fowler bridging together again . . . John (Rancher) Tubbs hastily grubbed out several fine orange trees before Frau Ann could change her mind regarding a new paddock at their Lemon Heights home, so she wouldn't have to motor so far when she wanted a horseback ride . . . Dorothy Bloss is another enthusiastic equestrienne, recently delighted over the riding mare "Babe," a birthday gift from Spouse Earl (Wedding Chapel) Bloss.

Country Club Bridge Party Plans Are Progressing

Adding interest to plans for the gala benefit bridge party to be given Thursday night at Santa Ana Country club was announcement made today that a number of prizes already have been contributed by merchants and club members as well.

The party will begin at 8 o'clock at the clubhouse, where a large corps of Country club members will be on hand to receive guests. Mrs. A. G. Flagg, chairman of women's social committee, and Mrs. Hugh Lowe, chairman of the party are in general charge of arrangements. Other members of the social committee are Mesdames Don Andrews, Richard Emison, Robert Fernandez, R. C. Hollis, E. D. Holmes Jr., Riley Huber, William Jeffrey, Ben Manker, S. C. Russell and Harold Wright.

Accompanied by bon voyage wishes, from a whole host of friends, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert L. Miller, 1809 Heliotrope drive, will sail tomorrow from Los Angeles harbor aboard the S.S. Newport News, for an autumn trip of infinite pleasant possibilities.

Accompanying them on the journey will be their friends, Dr. and Mrs. Robert Wilcox of Long Beach, and the four are anticipating the stops to be made in the Canal Zone and at Havana, Cuba, no less than the voyaging them weeks in New York City will be given over to sightseeing and theater-going.

Eastwood is stationed, and who are planning many things for their entertainment down below the Mason-Dixon line, including a motor trip to Washington, D.C. Another automobile trip in prospect is north through the New England states into southeastern Canada. The Californians are wondering if the disastrous hurricane which so recently swept the Atlantic seaboard, will make necessary any changes in their plan to motor through that section.

When the party eventually reaches Detroit, Mich., it will be to take delivery on the Miller's new car in which they will return to the coast some time in early November.

Mrs. Miller's mother, Mrs. B. B. Kellogg, 822 South Birch street, will remain at the Heliotrope drive home with Miss Patsy Miller, young daughter of the home.

Two Groups of Guests Received for Luncheon in Nall Home

Two intimate little affairs of the week had their setting in the home of Mrs. Hubert Nall, 2139 North Flower street, where bridge members were entertained on Thursday, and another group of guests assembled Friday.

The parties gave several of the guests their first opportunity to see the array of articles which Hubert Nall Jr., secured during his summer in South America. He spent the summer in Quito, Ecuador with a University of Southern California classmate, Fred Artega. The Santa Ana brought back with him an assortment of lovely lace made by the convent sisters; kimono; a harness outfit and any variety of interesting articles. These, together with the alligator which he killed, all are in display in the den.

For Thursday's hospitality, Mrs. Nall had arranged double hibiscus blossoms as centerpieces at the table where luncheon was served. She made effective use of the handsome crocheted cloth which she completed recently.

Mrs. Harold Nelson held high score in bridge play of the afternoon. Others in the guest group were Mesdames Paul Ragan, Fred Merker, E. T. McFadden, Harold Segerstrom, Harvey Spears, Roscoe Hewitt, W. J. Stauffer and L. N. Sherrard.

The decorative plan which added so much to the enjoyment of Thursday's party was carried out on Friday. Luncheon was served to precede bridge play in which Mrs. Harvey Gardner and Mrs. Claude Sleeper won prizes for their high and low scores.

Mrs. Nall's guests were Mesdames Bruce Monroe, Ellis Wagner, Claude Sleeper, Harvey Gardner, Charles Swanner, Joseph Daniger and John Backus.

Departure for School Preceded by Party

Invited to share the party with Mrs. Hood and the honoree were Miss Mary Shrock, Miss Jane Hill, Mrs. Lecl Boosey, Miss Betty Boosey and Mrs. William Heger (Katherine McDermott).

ASKS COURT AID TO MOVE HOUSE

Charging that she has been prevented from moving her house off the property of her niece and nephew-in-law, Mrs. Della Faris, 76, of Buena Park, today applied to superior court for an injunction to prevent her relatives from interfering with the house moving.

She built the two-room house on the property of Elbert L. and Sylvia F. Myers in 1930 and has lived there since, she states. The house was built with their permission, she alleges. Last Saturday she secured house-movers to move the house away, but Mr. and Mrs. Myers routed the house-movers and threatened her with jail if she persisted in her purpose, she claims.

Besides the injunction, Mrs. Faris asks judgment for $17.50 already expended on the house movers and $150 for attorney fees.

OPEN BIDS ON TAX WARRANTS

The county supervisors yesterday opened bids on the purchase of $100,000 in tax anticipation warrants of Fullerton Junior college, $60,000 in such warrants of Placentia Unified School district, and upon the contract for building piers and abutments for a bridge on the relocated Santa Ana canyon highway in Riverside county.

Seven bids on the bridge contract were referred to Flood Engineer M. N. Thompson for classification.

Two bids on the Placentia warrants and three bids on Fullerton Junior college warrants were referred to County Auditor W. T. Lambert for classification and report.

The supervisors extended the county's ownership of land in the Prado basin by another 107.67 acres by approving the purchase of such acreage from Harold and Lockey E. Race for $22,000.

Our Children
By Angelo Patri

An American public school is about the last place one would invite the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Children to investigate and correct. Yet there are conditions in schools that are so hard on the children that they amount to cruelty.

It is true that there are communities in some of our States which lack money to buy books, pay well-trained teachers or supply all the various needs of a school. We have to accept this condition today, but keep pushing the need for money for schools until it is forthcoming. It won't do to take for granted that what is, is right. Schools have to have money to do their work and this work is the most important that society has to do.

Lack of money is our most urgent difficulty. To it many of the hardships that school children undergo, must be laid. But what about the evils of programs? What about a program that allows high school freshmen twenty minutes recess in a school day that lasts from 9 to 3:15? Poverty does not do that, unless you indict the intelligence of the program makers. Even the poorest community can provide rest time and play time, and bodily activity for their growing children. There is no excuse for such programs. They are a cruelty to children, inexcusable on any ground.

And what about the little children from six years up? They develop their bodies by using them actively. There is no growth worth the name that comes by sitting still, hushed in silence, held to a bench by iron order. That is cruelty to children. Their muscles ache and their nerves make them twitch. They cannot pay attention; they become restless and what is known in school as "disorderly." The teacher feels she cannot release them, even when she knows they should be released for rest and exercises, because the program is set like the Ten Commandments. The teacher, the principal, the supervisors and the Board of Education set the program and enforce it. The farther away the authority is removed from children in classrooms the stronger he is for the law and its enforcement. The teacher is the least dominant and upon her the greatest responsibility rests. She cannot help the children, nor herself. Both must do as they are told.

Children go long distances from home to school and get no hot lunch. Schedules are so arranged as to give no time for proper eating, rest or play in many outlying schools. In hundreds of schools throughout the country the children never have a lesson that permits them to work standing on their feet, freely using their muscles. They sit and sit and sit. Books are their only tools. When you know that education must have the combined responses of the child's whole body and mind, this type of schooling is cruelty. And it is a deception, usually a self-deception of the community. They say, "We have good schools," and let it go at that. Many of those that say, "O, yes, our schools are fine," have never been inside one of them for a single hour.

Schools will not function in the lives of children until the child's point of view, his needs, his characteristics are placed first, above politics, above money, above any form of personal or community selfishness.

Mr. Patri has prepared a special booklet (No. 301) entitled, "Obedience," in which he tells parents how to cope with the difficult problems of disobedience. Send for it, enclosing ten cents. Address your request to Mr. Angelo Patri, The Bell Library, c-o this newspaper, 247 West 43rd street, New York, N. Y.

84 SHEEP IN YORBA LINDA KILLED BY MYSTERY MALADY

Eighty-four sheep of a flock of 750 belonging to Mike Boisseranc on the Kraemer estate north of Yorba Linda have died in the last week of a malady that is thought to be caused by feeding on poison plants, according to a report today by County Livestock Inspector John H. Bower.

There are four types of plants in the area that are poisonous to sheep, Bower said today, and it is thought that the death of the sheep can be traced to one or more of the plants. The lethal weeds are flowering lupin, mullins, larkspur and wooly pod milk weed.

Since being called to attend the sheep, Bower has placed the flock on an alfalfa diet and none of the sheep have died since that time, indicating that the former feeding was the cause of the deaths.

A further check by Bower and officials of the state department of animal husbandry will be made with 12 "guinea pig" sheep on Monday.

In Nepal, a country on the southern slopes of the Himalayas, only members of the royal family are permitted to own automobiles.

Frogs are amphibians, but frogs' legs are classed as fish.

WHO ARE THE VOTERS?

The last votes have been counted and the last column of figures checked. Congratulations have been accepted and losses taken.

The primary election is over, but before we look it up in the pages of history, let's take a final look at the tabulations. Just who are the three million voters who cast their ballots in this election?

They may be divided into three groups. In the first are the state's 900,000 property owners. The second group is somewhat larger, containing the million or more voters who own no property, but pay heavy taxes on what they earn and what they buy. The third group, almost equal in numbers to the first, owns no property and pays few taxes. It is composed of those who receive assistance of some form from the government.

Voters in the first two groups pay 100 per cent of the state's taxes. As a safeguard to their interests, the law requires a two-thirds vote before money can be borrowed against these taxes. Such a law is just, for it puts the right to borrow in the hands of the voters who eventually must foot the bill.

But there are those who would change this law. They propose to make any amount of borrowing possible on a bare majority vote. They propose, in the Garrison Bond Act, to place the right to borrow in the hands of the majority and permit that majority to include those who only pay taxes they have received from the government in the form of some debt. They propose to open the gates to a flood of unwarranted public borrowing, borrowing controlled by the voters who pay no taxes.

California's voters have just exercised their right to vote. They have another right—won over a hundred years ago—to grant control of taxes to those who must pay them. But that right will be destroyed if the control of the government borrowing is taken from the voters who pay the bills, and given to those who accept most of their support from the government.

THE DESIRE TO OWN

In a remarkable book entitled "The Desire to Own," J. A. Arnold, Secretary-Manager of the American Taxpayers League, points out this desire largely as the cause of man's long ascent up the ladder of civilization. Back in the dark ages that precede history by tens of thousands of years, early man settled himself and his family on a plot of ground. Little by little he began gathering together possessions, which he would defend with his life. And as the centuries passed, other, kindred desires and ambitions appeared in the awakening brain of man—the desire to acquire, the desire to save, and the desire to transmit property to those of his blood who would follow him.

Today the desire to own—which has been the desire responsible for all material progress, for all industrial development, and for all the expansion of our vast industrial civilization—is opposed, curiously enough, by that agency which man created in order to protect himself in the ownership of what he possessed: that is, government. Through oppressive and excessive taxation we are making ownership of property of all kinds, whether it be money or real estate or securities or anything else, constantly more difficult. This is as true of the man of small means, who pays out a quarter of his income in hidden taxes to government, as it is of the man of large means whose income is practically confiscated by direct taxation. Federal and state governments possess unlimited power of taxation. They can, if they will, take all that any man or any business earns. It is coming perilously close to that now. And thus, slowly but certainly, man's opportunity to acquire possessions—ownership of material things—is lessened or destroyed.

Mr. Arnold has a solution, and he repeats it in the same words a score of times in his book: "The power of government over the purse must be limited." Many other thoughtful students of history and government have come to the identical conclusion. Unless some definite check over the taxing power of government is established, the future of civilization and of individual ownership of property, will be destroyed.

BUSINESS WEEK

(Fort Worth Star-Telegram)

When we accept the theme of current Business Week that "What Helps Business, Helps You, and What Hurts Business, Hurts You," we are also forced to admit the correctness of the converse which would read "What Helps You, Helps Business and What Hurts You, Hurts Business."

The term "business" itself is so general as to be susceptible of confusion. Business can not be isolated like a germ in a laboratory from the rest of society. Thus both the defenders and detractors of business should first be sure they know what they are talking about before either class expects us to understand what they are saying.

Possibly, the best view we can take is that our entire economic system is an intricate, interdependent machine that can be thrown out of order if any one portion of it breaks down. If we limit our definition of business for the moment to apply to stores and industrial plants only, we must know that we can not punish them or give them special advantage lest the whole economic machine fall. Therefore, since business embraces everybody, or we are all parts of the whole, enlightened selfishness demands fair dealing on all sides.

THE END OF THE EPOCH

(New York Times)

The terms which the British and French Governments have sent to Prague have not yet been revealed officially. But if present reports are accurate, and if the capitulation to the demands of Germany is as complete as it now seems to be, one thing can be said with certainty. This is the end of the whole system of collective security built up in the post-war treaties. It is the end of that system because a demonstration will have been given, in the very heart of Europe, before the eyes of all the world and in a manner which leaves no possible room for doubt, that force alone is the determining factor in the relationship of nations.

This is not to say that collective security is dead beyond recall. The time will come when men and nations everywhere will have to think of it again, to plan for it again, to work to make it a reality. For collective security is much more than a noble dream in an ignoble world; it is a practical necessity under

WHY FRANCE AND ENGLAND SUBMITTED

There have been many columns written on why France and England and Czechoslovakia consented to the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia established in the Versailles treaty as a buffer state.

We have not seen a better explanation than the one written 85 years ago by Herbert Spencer in his treatise on over-legislation. Spencer points out many difficulties in government operation, as compared with private operation. After he had thoroughly done this, then he said, "To the immense positive evils entailed by over-legislation have to be added the equally great negative evils—evils which, notwithstanding their greatness, are scarcely at all recognized, even by the far-seeing. While the State does those things which it ought not to do, as an inevitable consequence, it leaves undone those things which it ought to do. Time and activity being limited, it necessarily follows that legislators' sins of commission entail sins of omission. Mischievous meddling involves disastrous neglect; and until statesmen are ubiquitous and omnipotent, must ever do so. In the very nature of things an agency employed for two purposes must fulfill both imperfectly; partly because, while fulfilling the one it cannot be fulfilling the other, and partly because its adaptation to both ends implies incomplete fitness for either. . . . And, if an institution undertakes, not two functions but a score—if a government, whose office it is to defend citizens against aggressors, foreign and domestic, engages also to disseminate Christianity, to administer charity, to teach children their lessons, to adjust prices of food, to inspect coal mines, to regulate railways, to superintend house building, to arrange cab fares, to look into people's stink-traps, to vaccinate their children, to send out emigrants, to prescribe hours of labor, to examine lodging houses, to test the knowledge of mercantile captains, to provide public libraries, to read and authorize dramas, to inspect passenger ships, to see that small dwellings are supplied with water, to regulate endless things from a banker's issues down to the boat fares of the Serpentine—is it not manifest that its primary duty must be ill-discharged in proportion to the multiplicity of affairs it busies itself with?"

Now, especially England and France, have been busying themselves with functions of government other than the primary function of government; namely, to defend citizens against aggressors, foreign and domestic and, in so doing, have so weakened their ability that they have been unable to grow and develop with enough strength that they dare match their skill with Germany and Italy.

It is, of course, true that Germany and Italy have to a great extent exceeded the primary purposes of government but they have been looking at the future. They have never attempted to limit hours of work or curtail production. They have been planning for future results. They have been attempting to build up the total strength of their nations so that they can defend themselves from without and from within.

So this article, written many years ago, sets down a truism in which the recent capitulation of England, France and Czechoslovakia is a very concrete example of the results of over-legislation and over-attempt of the government to care for its people instead of letting them do the things that nature intended them to do.

PENSION ADVOCATES APPROACH DICTATORIAL IDEAS

Probably there is not one believer in federal pensions who would not be horrified at the statement that the advocates of pensions are, in reality, approaching the beliefs of a dictator. But, when analyzed, this seems to be the case.

The advocates of the pension are, in reality, saying that the state as a whole should have the right and authority by force and coercion of the majority to take the production from one group and distribute it to another group. This, in reality, is the exact opposite of the free competitive system. It is an interference by the state of the alienable rights of an individual to the fruits of his own production.

And this is exactly what dictators and kings always believed—that the state could do no wrong; that it had unlimited rights to do with the individual or the fruits of his work as it saw fit.

So, in reality, they are advocating the same kind of a doctrine that a dictator advocates.

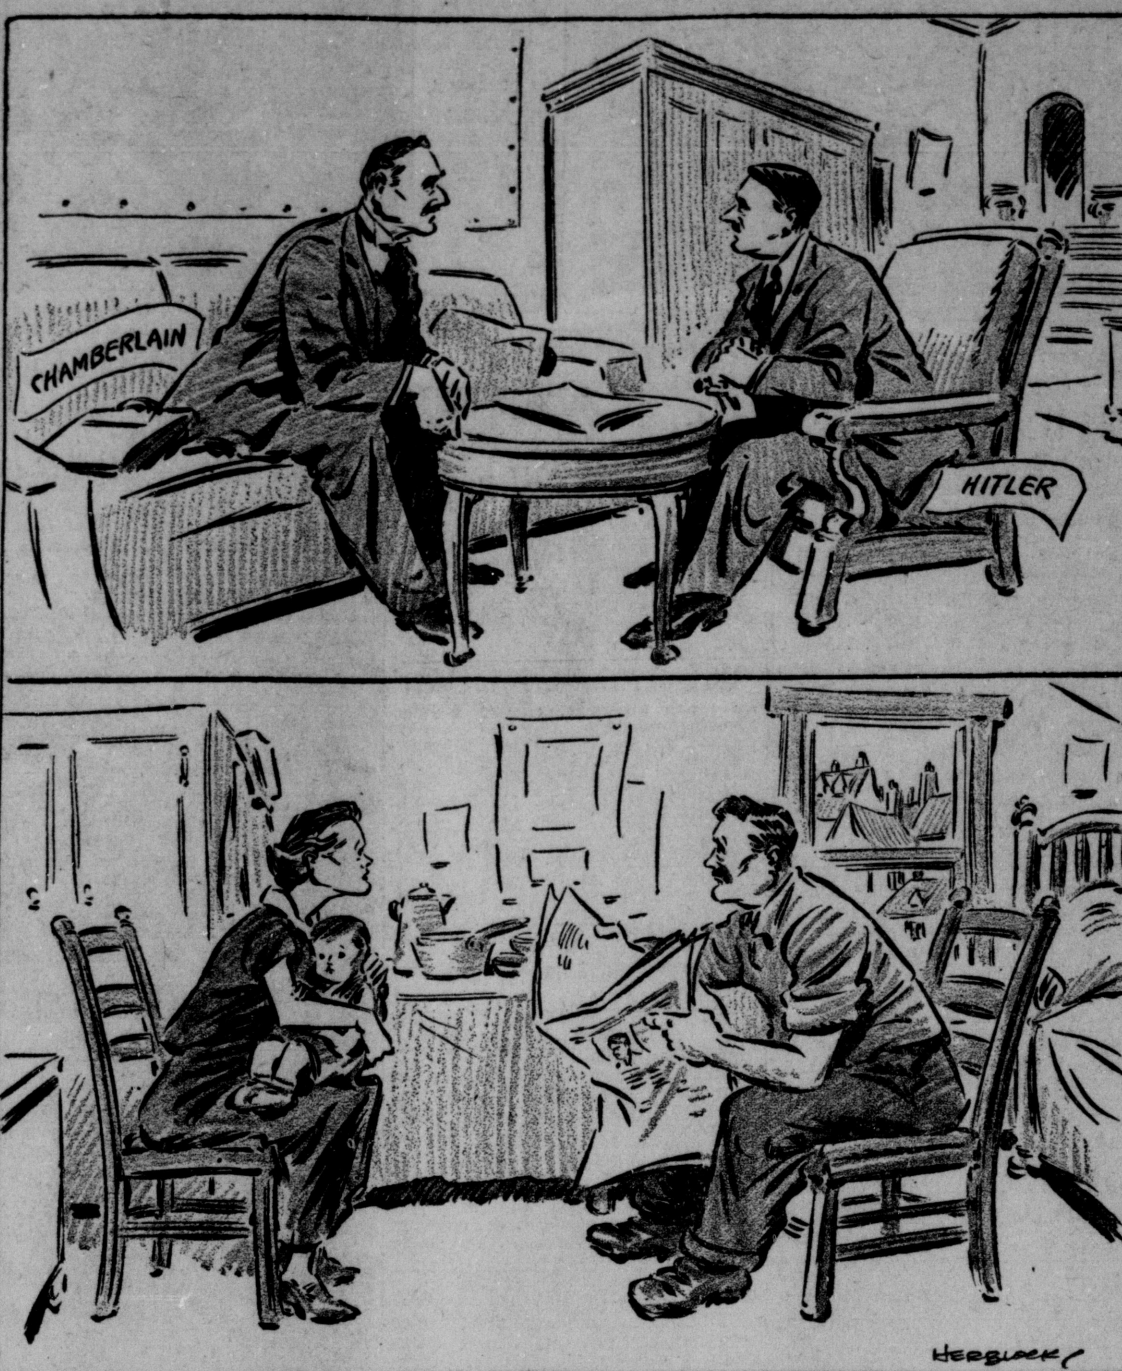

Still constant is a wondrous excellence.—Shakespeare.

the conditions which prevail today, with the fate of every nation tied inextricably to the fate of every other nation, and the world will know no peace and no real respite from alarm until the dream is realized. But before that can be brought to pass many things must happen. The faith that will die, if Czechoslovakia is sacrificed, will somehow have to be revived. The mistakes of the past, the mistakes of will and of judgment and of execution which led to the present tragic situation, will have to be corrected.

Many must be thinking today that the most tragic of these mistakes is the present surrender. It is a surrender to evil made by the democratic powers to save themselves from what they consider a greater evil. Yet the American people, having refused to assume any obligation to strengthen the structure we helped to build, the structure of which the keystone and symbol was Czechoslovakia, the state born in Pittsburgh and sponsored by our Government, have no right to urge on others the terrible risks and responsibilities we do not share.

We may, however, question their judgment. Are the democracies alone to pay the price of peace, supposing any peace can come from this surrender? The world had grounds for hoping that there was a solution of the Sudeten question based on all-round sacrifices. The Sudetens could have had all they ever asked within the framework of the Czechoslovak republic. The guarantee of neutrality proposed in the present settlement would have dissolved the Soviet alliance and given Hitler what he has insisted he wants most. A settlement on such lines, moreover, by furnishing a working model for a new approach to the problem of minorities, might have laid the foundation for a peaceful evolution in Central Europe. For there is no escape from the fact that what has been decreed for the Sudeten area is threatening in other parts of Czechoslovakia and will happen in other states tomorrow. The world cries, Peace, peace; when there is no peace.

Peace Or War?

News Behind The News

By PAUL MALLON

World Copyright 1938 by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 24.—No political egg was ever scrambled more thoroughly than the finale of the purge campaign.

Democrat John O'Connor won the Republican nomination for his own Democratic seat. American labor party helper, James Fay, won the Democratic nomination. It would have been an omelet if the Republican candidate, Allen Dulles, had won the labor party nomination, but there wasn't one, so he got nothing.

Nearly all involved are fighting mad. Tammany politicians have been shaking their fists at O'Connor for getting them into such a fix. O'Connor has been shaking his fist at himself for unwise acceptance of the Republican nomination. National Republicans are privately charging their local New York men with stupidity for eliminating a Republican candidate from the fall election choice.

Unscramblers have been busy since the results were counted trying to induce O'Connor to renounce the Republican nomination, and not run as an independent. Whereupon a Republican convention would nominate Dulles.

Only Fay and Roosevelt are satisfied.

House Leader Sam Rayburn is coming back from Texas unexpectedly in mid-October, but no one seems to know why. Official excuse is he wants to make a speaking trip for Democratic congressional candidates. Unofficial suspicion centers in the possibility of a special session of congress for farm or rail legislation, but confirmation is lacking.

Rayburn's biggest job is to re-align the top of the house machine. With 5 Democrats already gone from the ways and means committee, and 2 from the rules committee, a new ruling crowd will have to be organized.

The question is whether it is going to be the crowd of Roosevelt or the crowd of Garner. Rayburn is a friend of both.

Note: Dean James Landis of Harvard law has just published a book dedicated to Rayburn in these words: "To Sam Rayburn of Texas, whose quiet desire to serve his country has fashioned so greatly the development of the administrative process."

Mr. Roosevelt's senate leader Mr. Barkley seems willing to let purge by-gones be by-gones. He has indicated he would be glad to help Senator Tydings of Maryland, and is going to speak in other states, only one of which (Illinois) has a nominee near the 100 per cent class.

At the same time Barkley does not seem to be getting his usual enjoyment out of talking to reporters.

Leaving "god's room," the cloistered luncheon office of senate Secretary Halsey the other day, he took a roundabout way through the senate chamber so as not to cross the path of news-men. However, they crossed his.

Friends indicate Barkley is perturbed about his re-election as leader as a result of purge ill-feelings.

Last word is the anti-monopolists are going to hear the C & O. Morgan dovetailing directors first in the hearings after October 15. It will be a flush story of crimes and misdemeanors in interlocking directorates; and the well known history of the Van Sweringen who ran a nickle up to millions—in the hands of the banks.

If an NLRB appointment does not work out for defeated purger Davey Lewis (meaning if Donald Wakefield Smith's re-appointment to NLRB is confirmed by the senate), Lewis may get the chairmanship of the national bituminous coal commission.

One of Mr. Roosevelt's recent British labor commission investigators, Robert Watts, (AFL) hit at Fascism with both hands and feet in his speech to the international management conference here, but no one knew it except those who heard his voice.

Investigation indicates five widely separate paragraphs in the speech were deleted from the text given out publicly by the management conference publicity bureau.

Blank spaces were left at the points where Mr. Watts contended the only prospective alternate to satisfactory industrial-labor relations was the totalitarian state.

The explanation apparently is that both German and Italian delegates attended the conference. Cautious publicity men desired to avoid offending these guests.

Mr. Watts, however, made the speech in full directly from the floor, which may indicate the Fascists are not as sensitive in the ear as in the eye.

Note—It is quite possible the Fascist delegates did not understand all the English they heard. Gold stripes were placed on badges of all who spoke English and some of the Fascist delegates, at least, did not wear gold stripes.

Just a few years ago the price of an electric refrigerator large enough for an ordinary family was so high that only a few families could afford one. The only kinds they could purchase were so small as to be quite inadequate. Now a six-foot box of standard type costs about $100 while a super deluxe model is about $250. Of course, many people have such small refrigerators that they still can not purchase this modern convenience but there has been a great change.

This column has several times called attention to the relation between prices and profits, with one point emphasized. A business man "makes money" by his total receipts are greater than his total expenses. Accordingly he does all he can to reduce expenses and increase receipts.

Receipts are enlarged either by selling at a higher price or by selling a larger volume. While frequently it makes no difference to the business man which method is followed, there are cases where there is a difference. Notice what is involved. One element is what is called "elasticity of demand." Ordinarily more of any article can be sold at a low price than at a higher price. There are exceptions, some of them quite important, but the statement is on the whole correct. This elasticity of demand is more noticeable with some products than with others. But to a greater or lesser degree more units can be sold at a lower price.

The other element to be considered is cost. If more of a product is manufactured total costs are, of course, higher. But this does not usually mean a higher cost per unit. Instead the cost per unit may be and often is lower if the output is larger, at least up to the productive capacity of the manufacturer. This is what is called "production at decreasing cost."

Now put these two facts together. In a large number of cases we find demand for a product quite elastic. Low prices or a better article at the old prices (or a better article at the old price, which is much the same thing) will mean enlarged sales. Also we may find that a larger output means much lower costs per unit. If these two facts come together with a given article then larger profits are possible if the price is lowered and sales increased.

This is being realized more and more. We can express its significance in broad social terms by pointing out a higher standard of living for the public. We may go a step farther by observing that only if a large volume of sales is made will it be possible to keep our productive equipment operating. Unfortunately, we have been in the habit of using up only about 80 per cent of its capacity and many plants at many times operate at far less than 80 per cent.

But we may put it in still another way by noticing that it is often to the immediate advantage of a particular manufacturer or dealer to lower prices. His tendency is apt to be the other way and sometimes he is right. There is a point below which he cannot reduce prices without losing money. Yet there is a danger that he may not appreciate the "elasticity of demand." The automobile manufacturers have grasped the idea as have the producers of electrical refrigerators, radios, etc. The idea is spreading.

A business man who wishes to study the possibilities of enlarging his sales through lowered prices will necessarily concentrate on an analysis of his own costs and the possibilities of his markets. If he wishes to see the problem in its broader setting he will do well to read a recent study published by the Brookings Institution written by E. G. Nourse and H. B. Drury. It is entitled "Industrial Price Policies and Economic Progress."

Fellow Citizens:

We should be bursting with pride over the firm notes our State Department has been sending to Mexico. It was high time that the United States told other nations what to do and what not to do. Why did we ever let Russia go communistic and Italy and Germany swing to the opposite extreme? Too many nations have been doing just as they pleased and we simply let them plunge blindly on in their fatal errors. American citizens got into jams time and again and we said little or nothing. Now at last, we have asserted our dignity. Mexico must stop her sentimental efforts in behalf of her millions of half starved, barefoot, good-for-nothings until she gives our good American land grabbers a square deal. Of course revolutions have depleted her resources and our oil companies of late have succeeded fairly well in strangling her financially with the result that she cannot pay and hence will have to stop her silly reforms and once more become safe for capitalistic exploiters of every kind.

Best of all, we have kicked a little nation to order around first. If Mexico gives in and lets us supervise her affairs, then we can attempt to straighten things out in Italy and Germany and ultimately even get back some of our lost interests in Russia. I had thought that they were gone for good when our statesmen let Russia go on her wild rampage without even sending a gunboat to protect our investments there. If, however, we see this thing through with Mexico and force her to stop even though we have to send down half the Navy and a dozen expeditions like the one which never did find Villa, maybe we'll acquire enough prestige and bolster up our courage sufficiently to try to straighten out Russia and even make Japan quit sinking our gunboats, shooting down our airplanes and playing havoc with our interests in China.

The logic of Secretary Hull's notes has been absolutely flawless. Mexico owes our citizens money and should pay; Why haven't we had some forceful debt collectors in our government before? I've lost account of what England, France and Italy owe us but it seems to me that it is several thousand times what Mexico does. We haven't been getting even interest on it! Well, when we get the little sum collected from Mexico we can have the big stick over the heads of the European nations and make them pay the really worthwhile amount.

It is most encouraging to me also to see that we are waking up to the value of ten million dollars. For the past five or six years our thinking has been in terms of billions. We have thought nothing of spending hundreds of millions of dollars just on paying our farmers to plow under their crops, kill their hogs and cattle, and reduce the acreage under cultivation. Now our government has evidently come to realize that even a few million dollars are worth considering and is going to make Mexico quit giving away land for her villagers to raise enough corn and beans to keep soul and body together. Maybe the poor ignoramuses do need a little land but they have been undemourished so long they must be used to it by now, and, after all, it is not our worry. Whoever said that we were our neighbor's keeper! If the Spanish conquerors took all their lands away from their ancestors and then our investors went down centuries later and bought up the vast acreage for a pittance, they did it legally, didn't they? Sure they did and our boys are ready to go down and fight for the legal rights of our opulent buddies any time our government says the word.

By the way, just what does our President mean by the "Good Neighbor Policy"? Whenever I hear the term it makes me think of what the Bible says about being a good neighbor. You recall that Christ told of a poor traveler who got robbed by thieves and nearly killed and nobody came to help him until this fellow gave him a lift and even paid his hospital bills. You know very well that we don't intend to do that for Mexico. We don't deny of course that she has been fleeced. There is no argument about that. Spain robbed her. We held her up and took away half her territory or more. Doheny went down soon after the turn of the century and bought thousands of acres of the best oil land in the world for a little over a dollar an acre. England with our help has drained out her oil for nearly thirty years and foreigners in general have acquired 90 per cent of her mines! Good old Porfirio Diaz sold us anything Mexico had which was worth taking and we got it for a song. Everybody knows that was just about the same as stealing, and now, do you suppose that we are going to turn around and play the "good neighbor" and actually pay out hard cash to help Mexico out of her misery? No sir! Not as long as the almighty dollar continues to dictate our foreign policies. Maybe a well Mexico would be a better customer for our exports than a sick one but it would be too slow a process to get her well. I'll admit that it was clever to say that we were going to play the "good neighbor" but now that that strange idealist, Cardenas, took us too seriously and pulled our bluff, we might as well give up the sham.

There are, however, some aspects of our handling of the problem, which troubles me. I don't see a solution for this but maybe our leaders do. If we let our big oil giants whip Mexico financially, how do you suppose that she will ever be able to pay either the ten million dollars or the larger amount she owes them? It's like putting your debtor in jail and then telling him to pay up quick. In such a case, the only way out is for the debtor to sell himself to the creditor and I really doubt if the modern generation of Mexicans and Cardenas particularly, are willing to do that. He seems to be one of those devil-may-care patriots like Chiang Kai Shek and might prefer to fight. While nobody is foolish enough to think that his war machine would constitute much of a problem for us, he might be able to turn the rest of Latin America against us. Wouldn't that please Japan, Italy and Germany! It would be just too bad for us, though, Say! I wonder if it might not show better sense to do as the banks have been doing the past few years and help the debtor find a way to pay rather than to foreclose on a property which would only be a white elephant on our hands. This would win us a staunch friend rather than a bitter enemy!

Another thing which bothers me is that the propaganda and economic war which is being waged against Mexico has made it impossible for her to buy from our manufacturers as she did last year. You will recall that in 1937 she bought over a hundred million dollars' worth of goods from us. This year she'll not be able to buy half that much. We've lost over fifty million dollars of trade in just one year that way. Trying to help a few of our citizens, we have injured a great many more.

Those Mexicans are really a friendly lot. You only have to smile at them a couple of times and they are your friends for life. Maybe all concerned, Americans and Mexicans alike, would make more money by being helpful friends. Really I, for one, wouldn't be averse to helping Mexico just now when she is trying so hard, though doubtless making many blunders, to improve the conditions of her millions of peasants. Those of us who travel there a great deal find it much nicer to have a wide open door in that beautiful land and as we have had of recent years rather than to be met with frowns as was formerly the case when "gringos" were involved.

Maybe we had better think it over a little more before we make further fuss about those ten million dollars. It might cost us a great deal more in money and lives to collect them and we would be sort of ashamed of ourselves if we did.

It wasn't just a yellow streak that made Mr. Chamberlain back down an take water from Mr. Hitler, instead of that it must of took a lot of courage to let a little squirt like Adolph humiliate a proud and courageous people like the English. No sir, they were only two ways to prevent that war after Adolph made that Nurnberg speech, one was to give in, and the other was by Big Stick bluffing, it was no time to bluff, on account of their stick wasn't big enuff without Uncle Sam's swingin it fer em, an Mr. Chamberlain knowed they wasn't no chance of that on account of he'd already looked up our last financial statement an it showed right there in plain red ink that we couldn't finance another war fer em, an we darsent even give em a letter of credit on account of they got such a poor memory. Everybody knows that was just about the same as stealing, and now, do you suppose that we are going to turn around and play the "good neighbor" and actually pay out hard cash to help Mexico out of her misery? No sir! Not as long as the almighty dollar continues to dictate our foreign policies. Maybe a well Mexico would be a better customer for our exports than a sick one but it would be too slow a process to get her well. I'll admit that it was clever to say that we were going to play the "good neighbor" but now that that strange idealist, Cardenas, took us too seriously and pulled our bluff, we might as well give up the sham.

There are, however, some aspects of our handling of the problem, which troubles me. I don't see a solution for this but maybe our leaders do. If we let our big oil giants whip Mexico financially, how do you suppose that she will ever be able to pay either the ten million dollars or the larger amount she owes them? It's like putting your debtor in jail and then telling him to pay up quick. In such a case, the only way out is for the debtor to sell himself to the creditor and I really doubt if the modern generation of Mexicans and Cardenas particularly, are willing to do that. He seems to be one of those devil-may-care patriots like Chiang Kai Shek and might prefer to fight. While nobody is foolish enough to think that his war machine would constitute much of a problem for us, he might be able to turn the rest of Latin America against us. Wouldn't that please Japan, Italy and Germany! It would be just too bad for us, though, Say! I wonder if it might not show better sense to do as the banks have been doing the past few years and help the debtor find a way to pay rather than to foreclose on a property which would only be a white elephant on our hands. This would win us a staunch friend rather than a bitter enemy!

Another thing which bothers me is that the propaganda and economic war which is being waged against Mexico has made it impossible for her to buy from our manufacturers as she did last year. You will recall that in 1937 she bought over a hundred million dollars' worth of goods from us. This year she'll not be able to buy half that much. We've lost over fifty million dollars of trade in just one year that way. Trying to help a few of our citizens, we have injured a great many more.

Those Mexicans are really a friendly lot. You only have to smile at them a couple of times and they are your friends for life. Maybe all concerned, Americans and Mexicans alike, would make more money by being helpful friends. Really I, for one, wouldn't be averse to helping Mexico just now when she is trying so hard, though doubtless making many blunders, to improve the conditions of her millions of peasants. Those of us who travel there a great deal find it much nicer to have a wide open door in that beautiful land and as we have had of recent years rather than to be met with frowns as was formerly the case when "gringos" were involved.

Maybe we had better think it over a little more before we make further fuss about those ten million dollars. It might cost us a great deal more in money and lives to collect them and we would be sort of ashamed of ourselves if we did.
